Market Review

- Global equities posted its second straight month of gains, rising by 2.26% in June. The U.S. and Asia ex-Japan led the way while Europe and Japan lagged. Meanwhile, global fixed income eked out a 0.14% return for the month.
- The market rally was fueled by the U.S. CPI inflation data which continued to trend lower to 3.3% y/y. On the other hand, core inflation, which excludes the prices of more volatile components such as food and energy, came in at 3.4% y/y.
- With inflation remaining quite sticky, the U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed) held its policy rate unchanged in June for the seventh consecutive meeting.
- Until inflation moves closer to the Fed's 2% target, rate cuts in the U.S. may remain elusive. Nonetheless, the market continues to expect that this will materialize come the second half of this year and this optimism has continued to be supportive of markets.
