Market Review

- The Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEI) declined in December by -1.3% to close the year at the 6,528.79 level. This brought down the PSEI's full year gains for 2024 to just 1.2%. Nonetheless, this also marked the first yearly gain for the Philippine equity benchmark index since 2019.
- In the fixed income market, short term bond yields rose by almost 20 basis points (bps) in December. Meanwhile, the yield on longer-term bonds fell, but by only 5 bps, leading to overall negative total returns for fixed income investors.
- November inflation came in at 2.5% y/y, slightly higher than the previous month's 2.3% y/y. The print was largely in line with expectations though. Food prices (3.4% y/y) were slightly higher despite rice prices beginning to come down. In line with these developments, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas cut its policy rate by 25 bps in its December meeting. The BSP flagged that it could cut rates further in 2025.
- The PSEI may continue to trade within its current range as investors await the inauguration of U.S. President Donald Trump in January 2025. The PSEI's current support level is at 6,550 while its resistance is at 7,000.
- BSP Governor Remolona mentioned that 100 basis points worth of rate cuts may be too much for 2025, emphasizing that policy will continue to be data-driven moving forward. In effect, local bond yields may continue to remain elevated in the near term.
