Market Review

- The Philippine Stock Exchange Index (PSEI) was down month on month due to various macro developments. The PSEI dropped by 1.8% and closed at 6,252.73. This close was towards the lower end of the trading range that has held for the past few months.
- The Fed (Central Bank of the US) signaled that they could cut rates by less than expected. Meanwhile, the BSP looks poised to cut rates once again, with the next policy meeting at the end of August. Inflation in June was benign again at 1.4%. The difference in rate expectations led to weakness in the Peso towards the end of July.
- In July, bond yields fell, with yields on shorter tenors down up to 12bps and yields on longer tenors down up to 9bps. The yield 3-5Y tenors rose marginally, just up to 2bps ahead of the new retail peso bond issuance.
- July CPI headline inflation was lower than expectations at 0.9% year-on-year (YoY) and is the lowest in six years.
- The PSEI continues to trade within the range of 6,200 to 6,500. Peso appreciation/depreciation could be a strong factor in the performance of the PSEI. Earnings announcements will also sway investors with sectors announcing strong earnings likely to see inflows.
- For fixed income, market participants will look to add duration given that the Bureau of Treasury has covered the upcoming bond maturities in August and September.
